GOV. LETCHER'S ADDRESS .- On the occa sion of the re-inauguration of the Statue of Washington, at the Virginia Military Institute, at Lexington, Va., on Monday last, Governor Letcher delivered the address. He gave a history of the statue, including its first inauguration in 1856, when Governor Wise made an address upon the occasion, and quoted largely from Mr. Wise's oration. He also excoriated General Hunter, who stole the statue, but said a good word for Generals Averill and Crook. He went into a "brief history of the origin, progress, and brilliant success" of the Institute: Governor Letcher paid a feeling and handsome tribute to the memory of Stonewall Jackson, and did not forget the great State prisoner at Fortress Monroe. He denied that the South was responsible for the origin of the late war, saying that it was "forced upon us, and mainly by the political parsons and politicians of New England." He gives a short resume of fact in support of this proposition. lie also makes a detence of his own course in connection with the war, showing that under his oath of office he could not have done otherwise than he did. He also detends the people of Virginia from the charge of being rebels. After showing by the facts that Virginia

"May he live Longer than I have time to tell his years! Ever beloved, and loving may his rule be! And when old Time shall lead him to his end. Goodness and he fill up one monument. The Governor closed with a reference to the political condition of our people and their duties. He said : "The Southern people regard the questions at issue as settled; and forever settled. They accept the result, and are prepared to abide by it in good faith. They pledge an honor that is untarnished; and when brave men and honest men give such a pledge, who can doubt their sincerity, and who can hesitate to believe that their pledge will be redeemed to the letter?' "No Government can endure which does not rest upon the affections of its people. A wise, just, tolerant, upright administration of public affairs will win back the affections of the South and entwine them around the pillars that uphold the Union as the "clasping ivy" encircles the majestic oak. Kindness begets indness-confidence inspires confidencecharity and tolerance generate love and affection. Let all these ennobling virtues be cultirated and encouraged. If the scenes of the last four years cannot be forgotten by either side, let them at least be forgiven, and passed by in solemn, dignified silence. Let each side cease to remind the other of the disagreeable incidents that occurred during that sad but azentful period."

Let us be patient, and all will yet come right. "When pressed by dangers and beset by foes. The Gods, their timely succor interpose; And when our virtue sinks, o'erwhelm'd with grief

By unforeseen expedients bring relief." Let us then be of good cheer. Let no one be disheartened or discouraged. We must all do our duty in a faithful, independent, and manly way, and then we may reasonably anticipate a bright and happy future for ourselves, our posterity, and our country. "It should be the policy of all to inculcate a spirit of concord, and so act each to the other as to advance the common interests of al. We should do anything in our power to secure the prosperity of the nation, augment its wealth, develop its boundless mineral and other resources, arouse up its dormant energies, multiply its channels of intercommunication, encourage agricultural, mechanical, and manufacturing industry. This is due to ourselves as well as those who are to come after us, and who look to us for the adoption of a policy that will place them before the world in the most advantageous position. Let us deal candidly, fairly, honestly, justly, and charitably one with another, and then kneeling around the altar of a common country, let a united prayer ascend to Heaven—'God Bless Amer-
